DNR declares moratorium on old growth forest at Swede Hill

In an October 25 meeting of the Peninsula Neighborhood Association (PNA), a letter from the state Department of Natural Resources declaring a moratorium on the 190 acre parcel near the Washington Correctional Center for Women at Purdy was greeted with cautious optimism.

The group has been working to preserve the land, which the Department of Natural Resources had termed "transitional." The DNR had proposed auctioning timber-cutting rights next February.

The state Department of Corrections was looking at a portion of the land as a possible site for a 200-bed pre-release prison. The Purdy site moved to the top of the list for the pre-release prison last month when a state site evaluation committee dropped South Prairie in eastern Pierce County from consideration.

State senator Bill Smitherman and state representatives Ron Meyers and Wes Pruitt met recently with over 40 community residents to tour the land and Senator Smitherman had contacted both the DNR and the Department of Corrections stating his opposition to both the proposed timber sale and the new prison siting. Representatives Pruitt and Meyers said they stand behind Smitherman 100 percent. The legislators said community opposition could turn the tide against both the proposed prison and the proposed timber sale.

Members of PNA plan to get clarification from the DNR about the exact terms of the moratorium, explore the many acquisition alternatives available for purchasing the land, and continue to work to build a community consensus. The group's next meeting will be November 15 at 7 pm at the Rosedale Fire Station.

Letters

To the editor:

Parks and recreational facilities are precious commodities. Such things do not come into being easily, or by themselves. In most cases they are hard won. Considering the great difficulty of bringing such entities into existence, I am puzzled that the Key Peninsula is reluctant to fund maintenance and operating monies to keep their parks and recreational facilities operating. Should the facilities unnecessarily deteriorate for lack of a few dollars, what a shame that would be.

For the past two years a group has been working on the idea of a community center for the Greater Gig Harbor/Peninsula Area. Here is some of the information that the community center task force has uncovered:

1. It is unlikely that some one or some organization will come along and judge we 'deserve a community center and then give it to us.
2. We most likely have not acquired enough 'inventory of land' for our near-term twenty year needs.
3. The cheapest cost of any community center or park will be the acquisition of it, not its operation.
4. The least expensive way to keep a property in good working order is not to let it run down in the first place.
5. A detailed plan for future development is a must.

If an inventory of Key Peninsula community assets and properties were conducted, the community might be surprised to discover how little they actually have for present and future use. I would like to think the Key Peninsula residents would not only fund operation and maintenance of their Volunteer Park and Vaughn Civic Center, but would support their park board with additional money to acquire and set aside some of the dwindling open spaces for later use.

I support the park board and will vote for the levy.

Donald Hornheck, D.D.S.
Vaughn

To the editor:

The funding request put out by the Key Peninsula Park and Recreation District appears to be really a basic on-going maintenance and operating budget. The additional funds needed for one time repairs on the Civic Center roof, chimney and furnace ought to provide the opportunity for saving money in the long run through more energy efficiency in heating.

I hope the Levy passes. It seems reasonable. The Civic Center is a valuable community resource and certainly provides an important gathering place for our community events.

Rivkah Sweedler
Home

To the editor:

It is commendable to have the Key Peninsula NEWS with its human interest stories, local history articles, and announcements of events as long as it is not loaded with political nuance and advertising.

It seems obvious that a majority of people on the Peninsula are truly tired of levies and taxes and could list many valid reasons for "no" votes. Why not allow the Key Peninsula NEWS some real journalistic credibility by printing articles opposing levy issues. Stop the railroading and give us a break with different writers and contrasting ideas.

KPCCA presidents report

Don't forget to vote. I hope you have all studied all of the issues you are about to vote on.

One issue that is very important to a lot of people here on the Key Peninsula is the Park & Recreation District Levy.

Without these funds, where will our scouts be meeting or the seniors have their weekly lunch and get-together. Don't forget the kids who enjoy roller skating on Friday nights and Bingo on Wednesday evenings. In fact, most of the residents in this community use the building and/or the park at least once a year.

Where else is there a place big enough to house the Halloween party, Firemen's Ball, or the Citizen of the Year banquet. Where would the Christmas Bazaar be held and the Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners? Where would Pioneer Days be held?

Granted we have an old building, but we do have a building, which needs some major repairs done this coming year. With the new heating system (for which the KPCCA raised $13,000 in the past two years) and roof we'll be set for a long time to come.

If the levy should not pass there is no doubt in my mind that the building would have to be closed. Heat, electricity and someone to caretake cost so much more money than they used to that user fees would have to be astronomical to cover the basic operating costs.

The Key Peninsula Civic Center Association (it is separate from the Park District) does not have the volunteers or the money to keep the building and park open full time.

We of the Key Peninsula have a very valuable resource here that with all of your help will continue to serve us well for many years to come.

by Megan Aprile

When I come to work at the Civic Center, I smile when I see the plaque on the building that says WPA works project - 1937. The Works Project Administration was created by President Roosevelt to provide jobs during the depression and many public buildings, bridges, roads and so forth were built during that period. My grandfather worked on some WPA projects, and he said there were so many men that everybody had to take turns doing the actual work. I'm sure with all that surplus of labor, things were carefully built! Anyway, from the very first, this building, which is now our Civic Center, has been focused around the needs of people. It was originally used as a school - the gym was a WPA addition and later it was purchased by a citizen's group to be used as a Civic Center. A brief history of the Civic Center is on page .

The beautiful story of Volunteer Park is on pages 5 and 6. I hope you will read it.

As you may know, without the Key Peninsula Civic Center Association, this paper would not exist - it would have quietly died long ago if advertising revenues had to pay all the expenses. The paper in addition, was founded to publicize events at the Civic Center and later the park; our "heart and soul" so to speak, would be gone without those facilities. Without the free space provided by the park district, the paper would, in addition, have no place to exist.

All of us working on the paper want the NEWS to continue to exist, to continue to bring our readers human interest stories, local history articles, coverage of local issues and announcements of events. I want to keep on doing what I do here at the paper. I think it is valuable. If enough voters don't agree, I can accept that, but I will make every effort to make people aware of what is at stake and the importance it has to many members of this community. For the NEWS, the Park District and the KPCCA, it is not a question of politics; it is a question of survival.

I want to mention too, how much work was done on this year's Halloween party by the members of the Key Center ward of the LDS church. They should be commended for the excellent job they are doing in putting on the event for our residents. Also a thanks goes to all the merchants and people who donated supplies and money to make this a great event.

Don't forget the Christmas bazaar on November 24, the Saturday after Thanksgiving.

The next Key Peninsula Civic Center Association meeting is on Thursday November 8 at 7:30 pm at the Center. You are all welcome to come and see what we are all about.

That's it for now. Don't forget to vote and have a wonderful Thanksgiving.

Your friends and neighbors want you to know where they stand on the Key Peninsula Park District levy...

John Dierck, president, KP Little League

It always seems like we never see any personal benefit from our tax money. As president of Little League, being able to see our taxes in action, working for our kids, was both fun and important to me. Each day that Little League used the park fields the kids directly benefitted from our tax dollars. Volunteer Park is alive with motion and excitement when the kids are there. Don't cut off the fun and future by not voting for the Park levy. Let's support the levy so our kids can benefit.

Joyce Case, member of Citizens Against Crime:

I support the Key Peninsula Park District levy because I realize the kids need parks. My grandson was in Little League; but it's not only kids, there's the newspaper and CAC. Although I think the restrooms at the park should be closed if the vandalism continues, I think it's terribly important to keep the facilities.

Hugh and Janice McMillan, active community members.

For all the groups with which we are associated (KP Lions, the Key Peninsula NEWS, Citizens Against Crime, the Key Peninsula Fire Department, Dr. Penrose Orthopedic Guild, the Citizen of the Year program, the yearly Firefighter's Ball)...the Key Peninsula Civic Center is absolutely vital.

Trixie Schick, owner Home Feed and Grocery. I'm for it, it's really the only thing out here for the young people, and it's a healthful activity. When you consider all the hard work all the volunteers put in on that park, it seems a shame not to support it.

Sally Cornman, former Citizen of the Year and long-time resident:

I've been associated with the Civic Center for years, and I feel the Civic Center needs our help and we need our Civic Center.

Henry & Eleanor Stock

Henry says, "The Center is the center of our activities and has been for as long as I can remember. There has always been a center at Vaughn, and without it we would have nothing. It's the heart of our community."

Eleanor says, "I agree with what Henry said."

Barbara Nimrick

Please say yes for all the right reasons

Al and Sally Kruger. Al is the president of the Senior Society; Sally is a former editor of the Key Peninsula NEWS.

Why should we vote for the levy? There's one reason for every person who uses the facilities, and that's thousands of reasons every year. There's another reason: for every volunteer who has worked to purchase, develop and sustain these facilities over the years. That's even more thousands of reasons.

The Civic Center and Volunteer Park are unique facilities for this community - please, everyone, don't throw them away with a selfish vote.

Dale and Claudia Loy, Citizens of the Year 1989, active in the Key Peninsula Civic Center Association.

We have two unique facilities that are hard to find in communities such as ours. It would be a shame to lose them. They are what help to make our quality of life here special. Please vote yes!

Marguerite Bussard, former Citizen of the Year, Loyalty Queen for the VFW #4990, member of the Longbranch Church and lifetime resident.

It's important to have both the Civic Center and the Park. You have to have places for kids to go. Just everybody uses the Center. Where would you go for a meeting if it weren't here? So many of the other places are so expensive.

Leroy and Frances Challender, present and past president, Key Peninsula Lions' Clubs.

As members of the Lions' Club, we know the Civic Center and Park are very necessary; we have many functions at the Center and we sponsor a Little League team, the Juniors, who play at Volunteer Park. There's no place in the surrounding communities that can offer the kind of facilities we have.

Oscar Schock: I support the Key Peninsula Park District levy because I think it's a basic need for the community to have a sports complex because the county doesn't provide anything. I think it should be supported by the community.

Rhys Wood, active at Home Community Center: Can you imagine driving through Vaughn and seeing a boarded-up Civic Center, or driving by and seeing Volunteer Park overgrown with weeds? This, to me, would be devastating.

Roy Madsen, one of the original Park commissioners.

I support the Key Peninsula Park District levy because it fills the need of the community for recreational facilities which are not otherwise provided by Pierce County or any other governmental agency.

paid for
by Citizens for KP Parks

Sheryl Brown, Chair, 14504 Parkdale KPN, Gig Harbor, 98335

Jim Penfield, former US ambassador and one of the original park commissioners, asks for your support.

In its 18 years of existence the Park District has had its problems and its ups and downs. But it has never failed to provide or supply the facilities for a wide range of important activities for every resident, young and old.

In 1990, 49 1/2% of the property taxes each one of us paid went to the schools, 20% to the fire department and 4.5% to the library. The Park District only requests a levy every two years but if it had asked for one last year it would have amounted to 2% of each taxpayers bill. The bottom line is that the Park District is by far the best tax bargain we have. Every voter should approve the District's levy request so that its many services can be continued.

New ambulance not going to Longbranch old one is - KP NEWS error

In the last issue a portion of a news release from Key Peninsula Fire District 16 was incorrectly inserted into an article by Commissioner McMillan. We regret this error.

Levy issue critical to community structure of Park district explained

reprinted from the November 1984 issue of the Key Peninsula NEWS

Community discussion concerning the Key Peninsula Park and Recreation District's Maintenance and Operations Levy appearing on the November general election ballot suggest that clarification is needed as to how the Key Peninsula Park District is structured, how it is funded, and the purpose and need of the levy itself.

The structure of our Park and Recreation District is unique; it is one of the few in the entire state of Washington that is independent and in no direct way associated with a county or metropolitan area. Our Park and Recreation District is administered by 5 commissioners, all of whom reside within the park district and are elected by you, the voters in this district.

The position of a Park and Recreation District Commissioner is, by law, an unsalaried position. The boundaries governing the actions of these five commissioners are dictated by the laws of the State of Washington and subject to the Pierce County Prosecuting Attorney's Office, the Pierce County Treasurer's and Auditor's offices and the office of the State Attorney General.

While we, the voters, have the benefit of local representation, we are further benefited by a state check and balance protection.

All monies levied through tax and bond issues are collected and held by the office of the Pierce County Treasurer, but disbursed at the direction of the 5 elected Park Board Commissioners, who acting in your best interest, strive to budget those tax monies to provide maintenance and operation for the Civic Center and Volunteer Park.

The monies generated for many repairs and improvements are earned by the volunteers working with the Key Peninsula Civic Center Association through their fund-raisers. These monies are expended on behalf of the Park District. The benefits of this Park District Volunteer funding provides you, the district tax payers, the opportunities of a viable, functioning Park District with minimal tax burden liability.

It should be noted that this unique relationship existing between the Park District and the supportive non-profit corporation, the Key Peninsula Civic Center Association, not only saves the tax payers of this district many thousands of dollars, but also provides persons living within the district the opportunity to contribute to their district's development.

The Key Peninsula Park and Recreation District is funded solely through special levies and bond issues. There is no minimum millage as provided other districts. There is no state funding as provided to school and fire districts. Traditionally, the voters of this district have been asked to pay through the passage of M & O Levies only the "Bare-Bones" expenses to ensure the continued existence of the district; and as necessary, an allowance for major repairs, major equipment purchases, and those expenses required by law. Without passage of a public tax levy, the Key Peninsula Park District will be without funds and completely unable to meet the total obligations of the entire Park District.

Voter's pamphlets have been mailed Voter hotlines for more information

Copies of the 1990 Washington State Voters Pamphlet have been mailed to more than two million households around the state.

The pamphlet contains arguments on four statewide ballot measures as well as the ballot title, explanatory statement and complete text for each proposition. It also contains photographs and statements from candidates for elective offices such as Congress and the State Legislature.

The Voter Hotline, 1-800-448-4881, is now in operation to provide additional information about statewide ballot issues, the state general election and voting-related procedures. Hotline operators are available Monday through Friday from noon to 8 pm. Those calling at other times can leave a message for response during regular business hours. In addition, a Telecommunications Device for the Deaf (TDD) line is available for the hearing impaired. That number is 1-800-422-8683.

In addition to the regular voters guide, the Secretary of State's office also produces Braille, Spanish-language and cassette tape versions of the statewide pamphlet.

Those who have not yet received a pamphlet can contact their local post office or call the voter hotline.

The story of Volunteer Park: from conception to reality

reprinted from the November 1985 issue of the Key Peninsula NEWS

by Roy Madsen

If you received a large packaged gift from an anonymous sender, you would naturally be anxious to know first, what the gift was, and secondly, who was the anonymous giver.

You and your community did receive such a gift over ten years ago in the form of a beautiful sports center at Volunteer Park, given by a determined, dedicated and tireless group of volunteers who took possession of the raw land and turned it into an outstanding development which became a model for other communities with the same cooperative spirit.

How did it all get put together?

First, one of the most civic minded members of our community, Duane Fleming, along with others, proposed the formation of a Park and Recreation District.

One purpose of such a Park District was to get the Civic Center at Vaughn removed from the property tax rolls and eliminate the heavy burden of taxation, with the assets of the Association were deeded to the Park District. The voters approved the formation of a Park and Recreation District and at the same time elected five commissioners: Jim Penfield, President, Don Mills, Doris Blunt, Dora Lynn Rice and Roy R. Madsen.

At one of the first meetings of the newly elected commissioners, the question of how to expand the recreational facilities in the area, primarily the creation of adequate baseball and soccer fields, tennis courts, etc., was one of the primary items on the agenda.

Several options were considered, and as I recall, three enthusiastic residents, John Steiner, Nick Boquist, and Clint Buckell, suggested we approach Pierce county officials about leasing or purchasing a portion of the 93 acres the county owned at the refuse collection site.

Jim Penfield was successful in negotiating a lease of 20 acres at the southern end of the property at a rate of $1.00 per year, renewable from year to year. The property was later deeded to the Park District without cost.

Tom Cross, Director of the Pierce County Parks Department, was invited to view the site and he considered it to be an excellent choice of location. Mr. Cross stated that his department would assist us in any way possible, and promised to pay for a preliminary layout plan prepared by a professional engineering firm.

His best commitment to the community was that if we could raise $5,000 by public subscription, his Department would construct two regulation tennis courts complete with fencing and tennis nets. Jim Penfield immediately picked up the ball on this score and headed a successful one man campaign and raised the $5,000 in a very short time.

How did we go about developing a baseball field from raw land without having any money?

The answer was by tireless, enthusiastic volunteer help.

John Steiner agreed to act as coordinator of volunteer activities and the results you see today are in a very large part due to the many, many hours he spent telephoning, making personal contacts, and being the "Persuader General." After he had drawn up a working plan of the layout, he progressed in an orderly fashion to put his plan into effect.

The late Gene Berg volunteered to survey the land. Don Olson used his Caterpillar tractor to punch in temporary roads. Local loggers felled all the salable trees, and Grant Larson, the late Al Kraus, Eddie Fenton, and Talmo, Inc., provided the skidders to yard the logs to a landing. Bert Connell, Tom Van Slyke, and Ray Parko, hauled all the logs to Tacoma without any charge.

It was the money received from the sale of the timber which was used for the initial construction and clearing, grading. Spadoni Brothers rented their D-9 Caterpillar equipped with a hydraulic stump splitter at a reduced rate and were very cooperative in scheduling and supervision. Their operator, Ed Bunch, did an excellent job of windrowing the stumps and debris for burning.

Walt Smith of Active Construction used much of his equipment to stoke up and keep the "Home" fires burning. Around the clock burning required a bulldozer and operator in attendance at all times to meet fire regulations. It is rumored that some good pinochle games were played by the light of the campfires and liberal amounts of refreshments provided and consumed.

When the area was ready for grading and contouring, the late Kenny Brones provided his Euclid scraper and Jim Brooks negotiated for the rental of a large Wabco self-loading scraper at a reduced rate (no charge for delivery from Olympia and return to Port Orchard). Jim Brooks and Don Hein and others operated this unit with their usual professional skill.

Ralph Carlson, assisted by Mel Manley and a small crew shot the grades by transit to designate the proper cuts and fills. Chuck Nieman, by permission from his department director, arranged for the use of the County road grader, loader and

Hard work and dedication made Volunteer Park possible

trucks to put the finishing touches on the fields prior to seeding.

On one weekend, in a festive, picnic-like atmosphere, many women, children and men hand raked the entire area to remove all the sticks, stones, and other debris to give a smooth, even surface.

At about this stage of construction, it became evident there would not be sufficient funds from the timber sales to complete the first phase, so the commissioners decided to ask the voters to approve a bond issue in the amount of $55,000. Bob and Ricole Schottland headed up a successful campaign to win voter approval of this bond levy request.

When the fields were ready for seeding and fertilizing, Oscar Schock provided his tractor and seeder to do the job. This was done in September with the anticipation that fall rains would provide adequate moisture.

Unfortunately this did not happen, so Med Schwenka provided the Fire Department's tanker to get water from Jackson Lake to sprinkle the fields until the rains came. What a beautiful sight to finally see the sprouting green grass on a frosty October morning!

With the money provided by the bond issue, the commissioners were able to contract for the fencing of the ball fields and drilling a well.

A concrete reservoir of approximately 30,000 gallons was constructed by Lawrence E. Jopp who donated the forms and all the labor. Excavation for the reservoir was done by Rhys Wood.

A concrete block building for restrooms, equipment storage, and a concession stand was constructed with all labor for the block laying donated by Jim Arnold, labor for plumbing by Mike Harrison and labor for carpentry and roof was under the direction of Dave Wheeler. Hunter Construction Company designed the building and obtained all the necessary permits.

All the labor for the electrical work, hooking up the sprinkler system, pump and building wiring was performed by Don Mills and Roy Danforth.

A flag pole was installed and an American flag which had flown over the Capital in Washington was obtained.

Since the first year, each succeeding year has brought additional improvements and refinement.

Roads and parking lot areas have been surfaced, the fields lighted, horse shoe pits built, and the building completed.

A new field for soccer-baseball for adults has been built and fenced and a practice basketball court installed with funds obtained by a federal grant which Bob Schottland promoted. Walt Smith has given dynamic leadership and is always ready to assist with his expertise, equipment and advice in construction and other areas.

You can preserve, protect, and maintain the valuable gift you received from the labor of the "General" and his troops by doing your share in promoting and reacting favorably for your vote on the November ballot for a nominal maintenance and operation levy.

In writing about the early days of the Park Development, credit should be given to the local merchants, namely Walt Schizophrenics of Walt's Fine Foods, and Marty of Key Western Building Center, who were always generous in their giving of supplies.

Tribute should be paid to the wives of the many volunteers who supported their husband's efforts. Also, the many hours they themselves donated in various ways and the gracious way they tolerated the many hours of labor those husbands donated to the Park instead of working around the house.

In attempting to give credit, there is a sensitive, hazardous chance of omitting the names of some, perhaps many. A list of all volunteers would read like a miniature telephone directory.

They, the volunteers, know who they are, their friends know who they are, their neighbors know who they are.

Their rewards come not from seeing their names in print, but by the inner satisfaction and happy feeling of knowing that by their participation they contributed something toward the construction of a permanent facility which will serve the entire community for many, many years. The events are recorded using the best of my first-hand experience.

Come and join us for the Grand opening of our new location. ## Thanksgiving Recipes

It is that time of year again - the holiday season. All of us here at the NEWS hope your holidays are wonderful. We have gleaned some of our best recipes from past issues of the NEWS in case you would like to try something new this year.

Microwave Sweet Potatoes

- 4 medium sweet potatoes
- 1/2 to 3/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine

Prick potatoes 4 or 5 times with a fork. Arrange in a microwave-safe dish. Microwave at 100% power for 15 to 18 minutes using a carousel or turn twice during cooking.

Melt together brown sugar and butter in the microwave. Stir once during cooking. Cool potatoes and cut into wedges. Arrange in microwave-safe dish. Pour sugar mixture over potatoes, cover and microwave 10 minutes at 100%. Spoon syrup over potatoes, microwave 10 minutes more.

Smoked Salmon Dip

- 1/2 lb. smoked salmon, chopped fine
- 1 stalk celery, finely minced
- 3 green onions, finely minced
- 1/2 green pepper, finely minced
- Juice of half a lemon
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. ground black pepper
- 1/4 cup sour cream
- 1/4 cup mayonnaise

Toss the salmon and vegetables together, then moisten with sour cream and mayonnaise. Add equal parts sour cream and mayonnaise if it appears too stiff. Serve with crudities or salty crackers.

Pumpkin and Cream Cheese Roll-up

- 3/4 c. sifted flour
- 1 c. sugar
- 1 tsp. bkg. powder
- 3 eggs, beaten
- 2 tsp. cinnamon
- 2/3 c. pumpkin
- 1 tsp. pump. pie spice
- 1 c. chopped nuts
- 1/2 tsp. nutmeg 1/2 tsp. salt

Cream Cheese Filling: Beat together 1 c. sifted powdered sugar, one 8 oz. pkg. softened cream cheese, 6 tbs. butter and 1 tsp. vanilla until smooth.

Preheat oven to 375. Grease a jelly roll pan (15"x10"x1"). Line with waxed paper; grease and flour the paper. It is very necessary to use the correct size jelly-roll pan for this recipe. If your pan is a different size, you may use folded strips of foil placed inside the pan to form the proper size. Be sure and grease these strips very carefully.

Sift flour, baking powder, spices and salt together. Beat eggs and sugar until thick and fluffy; beat in pumpkin. Stir in dry ingredients all at once. Pour into prepared pan, spreading evenly. Sprinkle with nuts. Bake for 15 minutes or until center springs back when lightly touched.

Loosen cake around edges with knife. Invert onto clean damp towel dusted with powdered sugar. Peel off waxed paper. Trim 1/4" from all sides. Roll up cake and towel together from the short side. Cool completely seam-side down on wire rack.

Unroll cake, discard towel, and spread with filling. Reroll and refrigerate until ready to serve. Sprinkle with additional powdered sugar if necessary for an attractive presentation. Makes 10 servings.

and a brief note for those of you who hate to c#$k...

It's a terrible thing to say on a recipe page, but buffet-type restaurants (where you pay a pre-set price for a meal and then select from many dishes) offer very nice Thanksgiving menus. Children especially enjoy eating there because parents don't get upset about how much they take or whether or not they eat it all!

To the editor:

What's all this fuss about female reporters in men's locker rooms after a sports event - football, baseball or whatever. All this talk about female reporters having ink in their veins and that they dreamt of being a sports writer when they were 7 years of age. Come on Olson, Crouse and others, gimme a break. No 7 year-old child really knows what they want to do in adult life. Maybe at age 16.

I'm all for equal pay, equal rights, etc. But this big hulabaloo over the current locker room situation is only another avenue for gaining notoriety. Example: Lisa Olson claims she will have to leave the country because of death threats. Horse hockey! Who would bother to write or call her with a death threat?

Hey, all you bra burning liberated females, how about male reporters having access to women's locker rooms after a sweaty volleyball game? Where do I sign up for Journalism I?

What will happen now that Mowatt passed his polygraph test? As for Tagliabue and his $30,000 fine of coach Wyche - that sure shows a very low degree of mentality. Or maybe his daughter is a sports writer.

To the editor:

Pierce County is losing its open space character rapidly, and not working fast enough to preserve it. Something must be done.

Developers for years have been carving up our parcels into micro-lots, cashing in on the profits, and moving on to do it again. People buy these micro-lots, live there a few years, and move on to a mid-size lot. The progression goes on and on until the open space we cherish is chewed into little pieces.

Home buyers move into Pierce county in droves, each wanting to be the last. On comes the next, and the next, and the next, by the thousands they come. What can we do?

Let's develop an excise tax on property transactions that buyers, the people who strain our open space, have to pay, that will be used to purchase lands to be set aside for open space. Let's divide this money between rural and urban lands. Let's use this money to buy greenbelts, buffer zones, wetlands, parks, trails and other open space. Let's let this tax pay for a small branch in county government what will oversee this program. Let's let this tax pay for any maintenance and upkeep the land may need. Let's make sure this tax can be financed at the time of sale so it won't prevent anyone from buying a home.

What amazes me is that there is a proposed property sales excise tax that does all these things, Proposition 21. This may be our big chance to secure a future for our precious, Pierce County open space. Open space is what we are all about. It is why people come here. Open space for Pierce county...yes!

To the editor:

For many years, the 26th District has been known for the high caliber of the men and women it has sent to the legislature.

Therefore, I am deeply distressed by any possibility that one of the best of these might be replaced by someone of Bob Oke's limited background and knowledge of our problems.

He would spend or distribute state surplus income of one or two years ignoring the extreme dependence of our state on every fluctuation of business prosperity.

This is an attitude one might expect from someone whose adult life has always been based on an assured income and the anticipation of a comfortable pension.

The majority of service people I have known, with their early retirement, do start a serious second career. My own relatives who had service careers have mentioned how difficult an adjustment it is to organize one's life after having all basic decisions made for one by someone else. I think that Bob's thinking clearly shows such a background.

He says that he will be a full-time legislator, apparently quite unaware that Washington decided long ago that it wanted none such.

We prefer to have our fate in the hands of a "citizen legislature," whose members are dependent with us upon the well-being of the state. We would rather not have someone insulated from our ups and downs by a Federal pension.

Many of us see beyond our own little space and want to have protection from uncontrolled growth. Many of us depend on Tacoma for our livelihood and special health care as well as our access to cultural opportunities.

As much as we may enjoy the out-of-doors, we also desire for ourselves and our children concerts and museums and the zoo, all of which Tacoma offers to a remarkable degree for so small a city.

We see the Narrows Bridge, not as a barrier, but as a link to much that we value. We are either going to force our young people out of the area to earn a living, or we are going to heavily industrialize (who wants this?) or we are going to help Tacoma develop in a way which will benefit us all.

We have two very able legislators already from this side of the bridge. We are now very fortunate also to have one with an understanding of both sides and how they relate to each other - someone who is already dealing with such problems as crime from which we are increasingly not immune.

Do we really want to exchange Bill Smitherman with his excellent record (Bob's untrue innuendos to the contrary notwithstanding), with his exceptional ability to work with people and their great respect for him, for someone of Bob Oke's background and opinions?

Let's think hard!

Community House will provide food and gifts for the holidays ... with your help

by Mary Seidelman

As the holiday season is fast approaching, I am sure we are all thinking of the joys and blessings we share with each other. Amid the hustle and bustle of preparing, food and gifts, I would like you to think again of those less fortunate, and make a contribution to the local Food Bank at Community House.

This year, as in the past years, we will be providing food and gifts for those families who are looking at a bleak holiday season because of illness or lack of employment.

The people of the Key Peninsula has been so generous in the past, and we hope we can count on your support this year as well. We are in need of non-perishable food, used toys in good repair as well as cash to be used in the purchase of fresh meats and produce.

As usual a project of this nature cannot be finished without the help of volunteers, and we would appreciate any time you could spare to assist us.

Donations can be made at Community House of Lakebay, or at many local places of business. Come visit us at Community House and see what we are doing. Our hours are Tuesday - Friday, 10 am - 3 pm. Enjoy a cup of coffee with us, and tour your Community House.

If you have any questions, please contact Community House at 884-4440 or Mary Seidelman, chairperson, at 884-2448.

Holiday Arts Special Calendar

Weatherize!

a series on home tips
for saving energy

by Megan Aprile

A typical house loses 25 to 30% of its heat through windows. Ouch! You are in a position to make major cost-effective improvements by looking at your windows with energy conservation in mind.

Unprotected single pane windows, as anyone who has ever lived with them knows, become very cold in the winter. In the winter, I remember my grandmother hanging heavier curtains or blankets on the windows, which she kept open during the day, particularly if it was sunny, and closed as soon as it was dark. In summer she reversed the process. Although she called it something simpler, she was insulating.

The insulating value of window covers varies enormously, but generally speaking, blinds and shades are the least insulating, quilted roller shades which are installed to form a seal around the window are better insulators, and shutters with a foam core are the most insulating. You can increase the insulating value of drapes or curtains by blocking off the open area between the curtain rod and the window frame on the tops, side and bottom.

Caulking around windows, particularly on the outside, will help stop air leaks. Air inside a house is under pressure, and the cold outside air tends to pull the warm inside air out, so stopping air leaks will keep you warmer and save money too.

Rope caulk is cheap, available at hardware stores and goes on easily. Press in place around windows and door frames. It peels off easily and leaves no marks.

Cracked window seals can be resealed with masking or weatherstripping tape.

Reduce cold air drafts by plugging cold air leaks on the inside of the house. Inexpensive materials can be used.

Caulking is particularly important if you install storm windows. An outside storm window installed over a leaky house window will lose a lot of its effectiveness. It can also cause a condensation problem. Moist air from inside the house will enter into the cold space between the windows and guess what? Condensation all over the inside of the storm window, where it becomes a big project to clean it up.

You can tell where air leaks are by where the condensation forms; if the storm window is leaky, the condensation will form on the inside of your house windows and if your house window is leaky, condensation will form, as I just mentioned on the inside of the storm window. If you had condensation problems last winter, caulking is one step that may solve the problem.

Condensation aside, storm windows make a big difference in the warmth and comfort of a house, and range in price from very inexpensive kits using plastic sheeting to custom-installed triple paned windows. It's important to weigh the initial cost against the savings you can expect over time.

Flavor of Fall Auction a success

The October 6 dinner/auction was a huge success, some say "the best yet." The Civic Center gym was transformed into a blooming garden and everyone enjoyed the wonderfully prepared Beef Tenderloin Dinner. Over 110 items were offered for bid and the money raised is earmarked for the badly needed heating system.

This event could not have happened without the great group of volunteers. Thanks especially to Bob Mauer, the chef from Engine House #9, the group of talented ladies who worked on transforming the gym, everyone who worked on getting the outstanding collection of donated items, the creative crew in the kitchen, the group of young servers and also the ladies from Dr. Penrose's Orthopedic Guild, who ran the bar and provided delicious hor d'orves. Everyone put in a lot of hours and all was very much appreciated. One last thanks to our great donors.

The following donated but have not been recognized. Pete's Lakebay Chevron, J.R. Welding, C.J. Enterprizes, Cedar Stream Styling, Christinia Matchell Atty, Andrea Van Slyke, Lois Ashley, Earthly Goods, Dr. Kadzik, Martha Applegate, and Med and Marie Schwenka.

Thanks everyone.

Sixteen Evergreen students have been elected by their 250 classmates to represent them in a school student council. The student council is made of two representatives from each class and two staff advisers. They will meet regularly to determine their contributions and to express student ideas about Evergreen activities. The student council members are pictured above.

The Evergreen parent/teacher organization is called the Eagle Boosters. New officers for this year are: President, Dee Roach; Vice President, Delores Jensen; Secretary, Tina Pedroza; and Treasurer, Sabra Stratford.

The Eagle Boosters are a school support group for the students and staff at Evergreen Elementary. All parents, teachers and community supporters of Evergreen are members. The next meeting will be in November. Please come.

If you have any questions, please call Larry Hawkins at 884-3393 or Helen Carlson at 884-3149.

Have you noticed the art and written work from Evergreen students displayed at the Lakebay/Home Post Office?

The Evergreen staff is responsible for this sharing, under the leadership of Delores Jensen, Barbara Kraft and Sabras Stafford. We are told from the staff at the Post Office that they receive many positive comments about this work from the Post Office patrons. We are thankful that we can give something back to our community.

Y.E.S.! Teenagers care

A new teen service group, made up of PHS students, and calling itself Y.E.S. for Youth Enthusiastic about Service, has formed.

The group's advisor is a teacher at the school, Gloria Pollard, and the first task she set the group to was to write a statement defining their goals.

After a short, intense discussion, the group together wrote the following statement: Y.E.S. is dedicated to helping others; to improving the human condition; and to ensuring the safety of animals and the environment, in the world and our local community.

The group is already involved in a variety of service activities. Their biggest success to date is a contribution obtained from the Rotary Club of Gig Harbor for $280.50 to the American Leprosy Mission, after hearing one of the club members, Parul Duvvuri, speak about the problem of leprosy around the world.

Club members recently assisted in the clean-up of the Purdy Bridge area, planted trees near the new Stock Market food store in Gig Harbor, and are organizing the collection of 40 new teddy bears to be donated to the children's wing of Mary Bridge Hospital.

The group is also doing projects close to home. They have "adopted" a family in need for the holiday season, and will help provide food, clothing and gifts.

Real estate education contracts offered by state

The Department of Licensing and the Washington Real Estate Commission have announced that a $210,000 real estate education contract program has been established.

All proprietary schools, community colleges, vocational-technical schools, colleges, universities, schools approved by the Washington Real Estate Commission and other providers of real estate education are eligible to compete to obtain a contract.

Individuals and organizations interested in obtaining program guidelines, request for proposal information and a sample contract should contact Real Estate Program Management, RFP Coordinator, P.O. Box 9015, Olympia, WA 98504.

A Woman's Heart

by Elaine Forch

One of the most important life skills that we can teach our children is goal setting, that process that begins when we decide what we want to accomplish and how we plan to get there. Without this skill, many dreams and wishes are never realized simply because we don't know how to make it happen.

Children can begin to learn "goal setting" when they are very young. Besides learning by observing others in their lives set and attain goals, they can experience the process for themselves when they participate in children's clubs like scouts, AWANA, summer camps, Bible and Sunday schools or wherever they have the opportunity to earn awards or levels of achievement by meeting certain set requirements.

Some families teach the art of goal setting by setting up awards or allowances for doing chores, saving money or helping with special family projects. All of these experiences help the child learn how to make their dreams a reality.

My daughter, Kris, learned how to set and attain goals mainly through her AWANA experience. She came home from her first meeting as a third grader excited and determined to earn her three-year book award. I was more than a little skeptical. This award meant lots of verse memorization, special projects and a strict attendance commitment. But her enthusiasm convinced me.

We talked a lot about what she would have to do to get the job done and then planned the projects, one section at a time. Actually, she accomplished her goal by completing one task at a time, the same way any goal is met. Once she had earned her three-year award, she set her cap for the six-year award. Three years later she received her six-year meritorious trophy. The goal setting skills she learned from her AWANA experience are the same skills she used to accomplish other goals in her life, including a college education, a teaching job and wedding plans.

Effective goal setting sometimes requires creative thinking and the use of a few tools such as pictures and a refrigerator door. Often we have cut out a picture of something we want or that represents some goal we want to achieve and taped it to the refrigerator door where we can see it every day. Sometimes we post a project or cleaning schedule that we want to meet and check off the tasks as we finish them.

As a family, we have goal sessions at the beginning of each year and whenever we feel we need encouragement. We plan short and long term goals and review our progress from year to year. It helps us to see how far we've come and also to decide how we can do better. It also shows up the times when we make very little progress and helps us to understand why.

Goal setting is for everyone, including the young child. And we're never too young or too old to begin.

Betty Nease on display at the Key

The watercolor paintings of Betty Nease will be on display the month of November at the Key Dining Room in Key Center.

Betty Nease lives near Herron Island with her husband Roland and a bossy cat. She lived and worked in Missouri, Iowa, New Mexico, Texas and Kansas before moving to Washington in 1968.

Wildlife commission acts on safety clothing

Beginning September 1, 1991, many Washington hunters will be required to wear daylight fluorescent orange garments for personal safety.

The six-member Washington Wildlife Commission, voted unanimously to require at least 400 square inches of the bright clothing for upland bird hunters using modern firearms and for elk and deer hunters during the modern firearm seasons.

Those hunting groups were selected because hunting accident statistics indicate they are the most likely to be accidentally wounded.

In Washington there have been 284 hunting accidents since 1980, and 125 of them were vision related.

Hunters are divided on whether safety clothing should be worn. A 1989 survey by the Department showed that 56 percent of the big-game hunters supported it, but 60 percent of upland bird hunters opposed it.

Fall razor clam season

The fall razor clam season ends midnight, Saturday, November 17. Until then, digging is allowed on odd-numbered days from noon to midnight. Only beaches north of Grays Harbor are open. This includes the beaches between the Grays Harbor north jetty and the Moclips river and the beaches at Kalaloch.

Diggers are required to keep the first 15 clams dug regardless of their size or condition. Razor clam licenses purchased this spring are still valid. Licenses are available through the normal outlets.

Fisheries officials remind clammers about the 1/4 mile section of beach south of the Copalis Beach approach is closed to all clam digging. This clam reserve is a test site for scientists from the University of Washington to study the razor clam parasite NIX. This area is well marked and closely patrolled. Persons found digging in this closed area will be cited.

goose hunting news

Hunters who want to participate in the special November through January southwest Washington goose hunt should start making plans to attend a new goose identification class scheduled by the Washington Department of Wildlife (WDW) to obtain new valid hunt authorization cards. Authorization cards from previous years will not be valid this year and cards will not be automatically renewed, as the agency has done in the past few years. Hunters must carry valid authorization cards with them while hunting Canada geese during the special season.

The season, classes and authorization cards are part of a four-year WDW effort to limit the number of Dusky Canada geese taken by hunters. The Dusky Canada geese have decreased over the past two decades due to habitat changes affecting their sub-arctic nesting grounds. Populations of other Canada goose subspecies in southwestern Washington are abundant.

WDW officials will use a new film specifically developed to assist hunters in distinguishing between subspecies of Canada geese that they can expect to see in the field. To protect the dwindling Dusky Canada goose population, hunters must be able to identify the birds. The fifteen minute film will be replayed throughout the class to allow participants to schedule their arrival anytime during the session. Hunters must arrive at least 15 minutes before the end of the session to gain admittance.

Class schedules are as follows:
 Olympia - November 20, Tuesday, 7 pm - 9:30 pm, Olympia Center, Room 102, 222 N Columbia;
 Puyallup - November 19, Monday, 7 pm - 9:30 pm, Tacoma Sportsman's Club, 16409 Canyon Road East;
 Seattle-Area hunters - training video can be viewed on a walk-in basis Tuesday through Friday, 9 am to 4 pm at the WDW Mill Creek office, 16018 Mill Creek Blvd.

Park District Improves Value of your Property

reprinted from the November 1985 issue of the Key Peninsula News

by Russ Beckim

We are being urged to pass a levy for the Key Peninsula Park District which, if passed, will be used to support the Civic Center and Volunteer Park. This will be a levy on property and will therefore, be shared by all the property owners in the taxing district.

Is there any advantage to the property owner in passing this levy? Is there any advantage to the property owner in having the Civic Center and Volunteer Park?

At first glance, it might seem the answer is "No," because we cannot assign any monetary value accruing to the property owner because of these two facilities.

If we cannot assess a specific monetary value that the Park District properties add to our particular properties, we can say that they do add value in the same way that the schools and the fire department add value. We can also say that the presence of the park and Civic Center make properties more desirable to the prospective buyer; therefore, it is in your best interest as a property owner that these two facilities should continue to serve the Key Peninsula.

In the Library

The Friends of the Key Center Library program on Wednesday, November 14 at 7 pm is "A Shade of Green You Cannot See: The Future of Wildlife and the Environment," an environmental discussion by Charles Bergman, associate professor and chair of Pacific Lutheran University's English department.

Mr. Bergman is the author of Wild Echoes: Encounter with the Most Endangered Animals in North America, published in 1989 by McGraw-Hill, and articles for Audubon, Smithsonian, National Geographic as well as The Seattle Weekly, Pacific Northwest and Peninsula. His environmental commentaries are aired on National Public Radio's "Morning Edition."

Charles Bergman summarizes his talk, "A Shade of Green," as follows: "Despite the reawakening of the environmental consciousness, there are good reasons to doubt that our feeling for nature is either strong or deep. MacDonalds and Hefty Trash Bags both now promise to save the earth.

The liberal environmentalist thinks five more miles per gallon will save the planet. The hopes of the environmental movement will be reviewed, particularly as it has tried to save wildlife in the United States and the world. Several of the most endangered species in the country will be discussed as case studies in the context of the history, current status, and future of wildlife.

These questions will be asked: Are we saving wildlife, or transforming it? Is wildlife now an anachronism? Have we institutionalized endangered species, instead of saving them?"

Pierce County Libraries will be closed for the Thanksgiving holiday on Thursday and Friday, November 22 and 23.

Elsie and Maryanna look forward to Wednesdays. Elsie can go to town, or any appointment she may have, while Maryanna enjoys a day where she sees other friends and experiences many creative activities.

Recently, the group had a "field" trip to the Puyallup Fair. It was a very special day with enough volunteers to provide a personal attendant for each Respite patient. Maryanna had a thrill when the baby goats tried to eat her bracelet. Linda really enjoyed helping by pushing Maryanna's wheelchair. They all took extra money for treats and had the traditional scones and an ice cream cone. Needless to say all who participated were very tired, but happy, by the end of the day.

A more tranquil Wednesday program was offered the next week when Pauline brought an armful of fresh cut greens and flowers and the group had a class in flower arranging. The products were enjoyed by the library and the Health Center. Pauline is really good at new and fresh ideas for activities. We are looking forward to making decorations for the Christmas bake sale of the Health Board.

If you have an adult in your home needing constant care, you might like to come on Wednesday to see or use this service. We are in the Brones room every Wednesday. You can call 884-9221 for details. As Maryanna says "See you Wednesday."

My brother Stan and wife Audrey dropped by today. They had been shopping, and had bought a broom. "Tine," as we call Stan, asked how much I thought the broom cost. With allowance for inflation, I guessed $4.

"Wrong, a hundred percent wrong," said Tine. "This plain, simple broom, believe it or not, cost $8." He remembered buying a broom at the old Home store for 76¢. That was when loggers were glad to work for $1 per day, and sometimes less.

Then we got off on the "good old days" for sure. He used to catch quite a few perch off the Home dock. There was a ready market for the fish among the local settlers, many of whom were Jewish, provided he kept his prices reasonable. Being basically a good business man, Tine felt, like Henry Ford, that volume would bring him more dollars than high prices would.

As the perch were large and fat when Tine first entered the business, business boomed. His customers were happy to pay five cents each for perch. As time passed, however, the fish did not seem quite as large as at first. Finally a customer refused to pay the usual nickel for one of them. He said that Tine was "pulling his leg," and he would only pay four cents "for such a runt of a fish." Highly insulted, Tine went out of business.

Another money maker was wood cutting. There were a lot of old growth trees around then. A tree, usually, but not always a windfall, would be located, a trail hacked out to it, a homemade truck backed in, and a few ricks of wood cut for sale or trade for food or whatever. It was clear profit, no stumpage!

Elsie Coffman's baby sister was born with Down's Syndrome sixty-two years ago. It was a difficult time; but the family kept their baby at home and have continuously provided personal care for her. About six years ago, when Elsie became the last family member to care for her sister, Maryanna found her way into the Respite program in Key Center. Both

Civic Center is "Home" for seniors

The Civic Center has been home to the Seniors of the Key Peninsula community since September 19, 1979. The meetings are varied with speakers, entertainment, community activities, and trips. There is nothing more rewarding on a cold rainy day than enjoying a delicious lunch and spending the afternoon playing bridge, pinochle, backgammon, cribbage, canasta, or dominoes with one's best friends.

The above enjoyment and fellowship would not be possible without the warm and comfortable home away from home - the Civic Center.

TaxTips

by R. Marvin Keizur

Gambling winnings can be sheltered from tax by deducting gambling losses against them. The trap: race track losing tickets alone are not proof of losses because anyone can sweep them off the ground after the fact. The same rationale applies to losing lottery tickets - and other betting slips. The best proof: A diary of wagers combined with payment receipts and losing betting slips.

With the end of the tax year coming up fast one thing to be checked is itemized deductions. Certain deductions should be accelerated regardless of what happens to tax rates. The ones to accelerate are those subject to percentage of Adjusted Gross Income (AGI) limitations - such as medical expenses and miscellaneous itemized deductions. You might not come anywhere near it next year.

The threshold for medical expenses is 7 1/2 % of AGI. If you're at or near this cutoff point, accelerate expenses so you get the deduction this year. The threshold for miscellaneous expenses is 2% of adjusted gross income.

Keep watch in your newspapers for further developments on new limitations on deductions.

building code standards to change Nov. 1

Building code standards to make homes more energy efficient will take effect on November 1. The county is adopting the changes early; the state legislature has passed a bill making the changes statewide by July of 1991.

The new code will call for more floor insulation and mechanical ventilation to provide for indoor air quality. Windows are a substantial source of heat loss and the upgraded code will require changes in window treatments. The total surface area for windows will be reduced from 21% to 15% on the average.

What is the Park District worth?

reprinted from the November 1981 issue of the Key Peninsula News

Our total assessed value is approximately $195,000,000 (1990 current value is over $500,000 - ed).

Our Civic Center and Sports Park play an important part in the lives of many residents, including our children. Tradition and pride have played an overwhelmingly and significant part in the development of the Key Peninsula. Many residents have been saying, "I never use any of those facilities, why should I pay taxes to keep them going, let them close, it won't hurt me."

This comment indicates a lack of understanding of what your property taxes really support. How many of you readers have been to the Port of Tacoma, to the Tacoma Zoo or to any school in our district lately. Have you called the fire department or sheriff or taken out a book from the library?

There are numerous services provided for the benefit and welfare of ALL citizens. Whether we use them daily, monthly, yearly or never, we know that they are there and are for everyone. Whether you use any service or any facility, these recreational and leisure time facilities make our community more livable, more enjoyable and more worthwhile to all residents.

We are now faced with a critical issue — do we want to provide these recreational and leisure time facilities for our community or are we willing to let them die? If the levy fails, all of the value of the Civic Center and Volunteer Park, which amounts to hundreds of thousands of dollars will be lost. There are no rebates given for public facilities that are abandoned.

It is important to remember that those people who are exempt from paying taxes will not be paying any M&O Levy taxes; therefore, the passage of this levy will in no way affect the taxes of these groups.

Are you prepared for an earthquake?

by Virginia Worth

The Key Peninsula Health Center Board is sponsoring a lecture on earthquake preparedness to be held on Monday, November 19, 1990 at 8 pm in the Brones Room at the Key Peninsula Library Building.

The speaker will be Mr. William Lokey, of Pierce County Emergency Services. He will present an audio-visual program in addition to the lecture. We can all benefit from this information and should have our questions ready, as Mr. Lokey is willing to share his emergency expertise with us. All residents of the Key Peninsula are welcome.

Key Peninsula Senior Society

by Martha Applegate

The Senior Society is making a quilt for the Arts and Crafts Fair in November. All the ladies donated material, and under the chairmanship of Virginia Adkisson, cut and pieced blocks. Virginia assembled the blocks into an attractive whole. With the advice of Georgia Gillis, our professional quilter, groups of ladies met at the home of Martha Applegate to do the quilting. The activity was a first for most of the ladies and they were really interested to see how the quilting added to the beauty of the pieced material. A real learning experience, it gave new meaning to the old phrase "Quilting Bee."

Helen Wolniewicz is in charge of the Senior Society table for the Arts and Crafts Fair. She is also accepting donations of $1.00 for a chance to win this quilt. See her at the Fair or at regular Senior Society meetings.

Seniors meet each Thursday at noon in the Whitmore Room of the Civic Center in Vaughn. Bring a pot luck dish and come to the meetings. That's all. No invitation necessary, no dues. Stay after the lunch to play cards and visit.

To Your Health

by Wm. F. Roes, MD

The recent "Death with Dignity" initiative which has been circulated raised many questions and issues which our society continues to have problems grappling with. Unfortunately, I believe organized medicine was somewhat misrepresented in the campaign for the initiative. I don't know of any physicians locally who support euthanasia, in fact, the Washington State Medical Association recently came out against the initiative. Even without the controversial aspects of euthanasia, the issues of "Death with Dignity" present a thorny problem for the elderly and those of us who care for them.

The Supreme Court recently upheld a ruling from the State of Missouri which further complicates care of the terminally ill. In that case, the court ruled that in the absence of a written "Living Will," the state and not the immediate family has the right to make decisions regarding termination of life support for a critically ill patient. A "Living Will" is basically a written statement made and signed by a mentally competent person requesting that, under specific circumstances, certain potentially life saving measures are not to be initiated. A good example is a patient with lung cancer requesting he not be placed on a respirator if he should stop breathing. This simplified example doesn't reflect the fact that any of us could become critically ill due to accident or sickness over a short period of time. Without some written directive to the doctor, your desires may not be known or carried out.

It now appears that simply telling your physician or family, in advance, will no longer be enough and that a written statement should be made. These issues are often difficult to discuss with your relatives and doctor, but it may become critically important that you do so.

Your family doctor has sample copies of a living will, as do organizations such as AARP, the Pierce County Medical Society, and local hospitals.

Many thanks for all the assistance at the recent Health Fair. There's still time to get your flu shot, so if you didn't get one on October 20, come down and bare your arm.

Physical fitness - are we making our president proud?

In our last issue, we encouraged readers to get fit by trying for a Presidential Fitness Award. Hopefully you've made the decision, taken the plunge, and crossed the rubicon towards a healthier, more energetic you.

Peninsula School District makes it easier. You don't have to drive to Tacoma to get access to exercise equipment. For a nominal fee, you can join the wellness program held at Peninsula High School.

A part of the gym has been converted to an exercise room with an impressive array of fitness equipment, including a stationary bike, overhead press, rowing machine, Real Runner™, Nordic Track™.

Instructors Brian Vosburgh and Ken Wickstrom say that most times the biggest obstacle to getting fit is unrealistic expectations about what you can accomplish. It takes time. They try to provide a supportive atmosphere, saying that no one working out should feel intimidated by what someone else is doing.

GENE THERAPY

It was recently announced that the National Institute of Health (NIH) gave approval to a procedure called gene therapy, to be tried on a patient with an immune-deficiency disease.

Unlike AIDS this disease is not acquired but inherited. The cause is a genetic alteration in a part of the human gene that contains the information for the manufacture of a very important cellular enzyme called Adenosine deaminase (ADA).

A disease that results from a genetic flaw is referred to as an inborn error of metabolism. Examples of such a disease would be sickle cell anemia, cystic fibrosis and Huntington's chorea.

Such diseases have been considered incurable, since the genetic error is found in every cell of the body. However, gene therapy holds out much hope for possible cures because it makes it possible to alter the genetic character of the cells inside the body.

The patient with the inherited immune-deficiency disease is treated in the following way: a portion of the defective blood cells is removed, and cultured outside the body (in-vitro).

Mammalian genetics and biomedical technology make it possible for certain infective viruses to be physically disassembled and modified so that they retain their ability to infect living cells, and lose their ability to do cellular damage.

These cultured cells are then purposefully infected with a modified virus that has been "engineered" to carry a healthy gene for the enzyme ADA. This modified virus was originally an organism that targeted mouse cells and was reconstructed by Dusty Miller, a molecular biologist working at the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center in Seattle.

These infected patient cells capable of making "good" enzyme are then reintroduced into the patient's bloodstream where they will hopefully prosper.

How long these healthy cells will be able to sustain the patient is unknown. The patient could be given repeated treatments with his own modified cells to prolong whatever beneficial effects may be the result. If this procedure proves itself to be even moderately successful, it will surely chart the way to eventual treatments of presently intractable diseases.

THE NOBEL PRIZE

A Seattle physician won the Nobel Prize in medicine. Dr Don Thomas of the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center won this prize for his pioneering work in bone marrow transplantation.

Dr Thomas had successfully developed the technique for bone marrow transplantation in animals some thirty years ago.

Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center was the first bone marrow transplantation center in the world, and used the techniques developed by Dr Thomas.

This procedure has saved many people who would have otherwise died from such diseases as aplastic anemia and many types of leukemia, and today the Center trains people from around the world in bone marrow transplantation techniques.

Drop in alcohol-related fatalities

The number of people killed on America's highways in alcohol-related crashes is declining, according to figures recently released by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. The figures demonstrate a 14 percent reduction in the percentage of traffic fatalities which are alcohol-related from 1982 to 1989. In 1989, there were 22,415 alcohol-related traffic fatalities in the U.S., 936 fewer deaths than in 1988.

The most dramatic decrease in this time period was in the 15-to-19 year-old age group, which showed a 33 percent reduction in the number of alcohol-related traffic fatalities.

Boat donated to Puget Sound Sea Rescue

A 22' foot jet boat has been donated to the Puget Sound Sea Rescue Association by Don Deubler of Northbrook, Illinois. Mr Deubler recently inherited the boat from his brother Gary, who was a local resident. The boat, with a value of approximately $15,000, was designed for use in white water rapids, and could be described as a cross between a sports car and a bulldozer, making it an excellent vehicle for rescue work.

This much appreciated gift to the Puget Sound Sea Rescue Association will help them in their response to local, state and federal emergencies. Puget Sound Sea Rescue volunteers respond to calls from the Pierce County Sheriff's Office, U.S. Coast Guard and the Washington Department of Emergency Services.

Glen Pszczola, the local attorney who handled the legal work on the donation, is also a member of the Puget Sound Sea Rescue, and explained a special significance in the gift; the Deubler family wanted the boat used for the public good in the waters where Gary once boated for enjoyment.

Bridges - a center for grieving children

from the Bridges center

It is the aim of Bridges that bereaved children reconcile the death of the beloved person and that this tragedy will become, instead, a turning point toward a productive and healing future.

With the increased institutionalization of the dying process, some important safety nets to enable healthy grieving are absent for children. Sometimes the pain is expressed in delinquent behavior.

Bridges: A Center for Grieving Children, is a non-profit, tax exempt, non-sectarian organization which receives its income from individual donations. The center is located in Christ Episcopal Church, 310 No. K. Street, Tacoma, WA 98403; phone 272-8266.

PNA is offering tours through the land for groups or individuals, and also has a slide show and presentation available. The group has a voicemail hotline, 858-3400 for tour or other information.

Local resident Stella Retherford attended the October 18 tour. She writes, "Observers craned their necks to look up into the crowns of great Douglas firs that rose majestically into the forest canopy.

Some trees were estimated to be well over 250 years old. One specimen was 20 feet in circumference with the first limb 100 feet from the ground.

Observers stood on the edge of the deep ravine of McCormick Creek to see its depths brushed with lush salmon berry and devil's club; the opposite slope was dense with large maples, hemlocks and more great Doug fir trees...Swede Hill...is an irreplaceable remnant sample of this area before we arrived."
